THE TROUBLE IN THE COTTON MILLS.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 30, 1875.
The trouble in the cotton mills of this city probably reached a culmination to-day and a disastrous and general strike seems inevitable. A conference of the manufacturers, at which a delegation of the disaffected weavers were present, was held this evening, and, after a lengthy discussion, a proposition was agreed upon, virtually giving back to the operatives one-third of the ten per cent reduction. A meeting of the weavers of the Merchants' Granite and Crescent mills was immediately held, and it was unanimously voted to refuse anything short of a restoration of their full pay. The two weeks' notice of the weavers of the Merchants' Granite and Crescent mills is up to-night and of the Merchants' on Monday night. The operatives are therefore on a strike, which must cause a stoppage of these three mills. Much excitement exists over the matter.

WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON DESPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30, 1875.

PROCEEDINGS IN THE HOUSE.
Immediately after the meeting of the House the reading of the journal of Wednesday (being the record of the forty-sixth session) was commenced. The Clerk undertaking, as usual, to omit the details of the vote—the names of the members voting in the affirmative and negative and not voting at all.

Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, insisted that they were part of the journal, and must be read in extenso.

After a discussion, in which Mr. Randall stated that his object was to consume the whole day in the manner so to prevent a day's notice being given of a resolution to change the rules, and thus throw that back for another week, the speaker decided that under the constitution a member has a right to require the reading of the journal in full, and thereupon the Clerk proceeded with the reading.

The proceedings in the House were brought to a close at half-past four P. M. by an adjournment on motion of Mr. Butler, of Massachusetts. Up to that time nothing was heard in the House but the voice of the reading clerk, drawing out the names of the members who had voted on the various motions during the filibustering proceedings. Several demagogues kept screaming over the record containing the official report of the proceedings, to see that the Clerk did not skip any names or omit anything. In this way some seventeen or eighteen of the roll calls had been read through, out of the seventy-five taken; so that it would have been daylight on Sunday morning before the journal would have been concluded. A motion to adjourn by Mr. Kidder, of Wisconsin, was voted down, simply because it came from the democratic side of the House; but immediately the same motion was made by Mr. Butler and carried. That was the longest and shortest way to dispose of the long journal of Wednesday's proceedings, and when the House meets on Monday the only journal to be read will be the few lines of to-day's proceedings. During the day an attempt was made to have the bill passed to pay interest on the three-hundred-and-fifty bonds of the District of Columbia, but Mr. Howard, of Indiana, objected, and it consequently failed.

REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL CAUTIONS.
The Republican Senators were in caucus to-day for about five hours on the Louisiana question. Much debate ensued, when it was finally concluded to support the President in what he had already done relative to affairs in that State, and to stand by him in the future in the support of the Kellogg government in all lawful authority. It is said there are eight Senators who dissent from this position of their republican associates. The question of Mr. Pinchback's admission was not discussed, as it is still before the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

A SCARCITY OF WATER.

THE UNREASONABLE DROUGHT IN SOUTHERN NEW HAMPSHIRE.—STOPPAGE OF THE HILLSBOROUGH MILLS.
NASHUA, N. H., Jan. 30, 1875.

The unreasonable drought, with the fact that many of the brooks and springs are frozen solid, bids fair to result in serious inconvenience to the farmers and manufacturing industries of Southern New Hampshire. In many of the towns farmers are obliged to melt snow to get water for their cattle.

The Hillsborough Mills at Wilton, and Morse, Haley & Co.'s mills at Milford, have stopped because of an insufficient supply of water. In Nashua the mills have been running on about half time, and corporations are paying the board of operations when the latter are idle. The Nashua and Jackson companies will both start with steam on Tuesday next, making three-fourths time. Rain is greatly needed.

A CENTENNIAL REGATTA.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30, 1875.

Most of the participants are to receive presents or prizes. The committee was adopted by acclamation, the only material change being that the committee who shall have charge of the regatta shall give a suitable prize for the international professional regatta. On motion it was resolved to appoint a committee of twenty-five or more to decide upon the character of the prizes to be awarded to the winners of the regatta, and to report thereon at the next meeting of the society.
